ABOUT THE GCP

Dear Participants,

As you are aware, Clinical Research is essential for establishing the safety and effectiveness of specific health and medical products and practices. However, the complexities of modern medical research require a detailed understanding of the set of guidelines for biomedical studies.

Furthermore, research can only be considered reliable if it is conducted in accordance with principles and standards collectively referred to as Good Clinical Practice (GCP). This workshop will help you conduct research according to international standards, whether it is government-sponsored, institution-sponsored, or investigator-initiated clinical research.
