

INTRODUCTION

The School of Education, Sharda University is proposing a workshop on Special Education.

Special education is a growing universal concern that informs and challenges the processes of educational reform in both developing and developed regions. Special education is also an evolving concept useful to guide strategies of educational change addressing the sources and consequences of exclusion within the holistic framework of the EFA goals and the understanding of education as a human right.

Over approximately the last fifteen years, the concept of special education has evolved towards the idea that all children and young people, despite different disabilities. The focus is on generating inclusive settings, which should involve: (a) respecting, understanding and taking care of persons with special needs (b) providing equal access to quality education; (c) close co-ordination with other social policies.

Thus the aim of this workshop is to sensitize teachers and students towards the needs and challenges of differently abled children. The workshop also targets to equip teachers in identification of children with special needs and orient them about assistive devices and policies to help them.

OBJECTIVES OF THE WORKSHOP

The Conference is centered around sharing the innovative and creative trends in Education and building new capacities with respect to:

- To familiarize the participants with the needs and challenges of the differently abled children.
